

Inning so relief, he went to California, where he remained three years, and afterward to Europe, hoping thereby to regain his health, but without avail. One day his heart broke down and he was unable to take even five minutes' walk. He read Dr. Calle's book entitled "Fath Curves," and finding not the least hope of recovery from other sources, applied to the doctor for healing by prayer, and was restored to health through that means, so that he was enabled to walk a mile or more to attend to his duties at the academy. Mrs. Lewis Tibbets spoke of her cure from rheumatism and other diseases in answer to prayers. Albert A. Cheever, of the Davis Church, Brattleboro, Vt., testified that he was one of three in his church who had been cured by faith. Charles H. Walker, a Congregationalist from St. Louis, was sick with dyspepsis and diarrhea, so that it seemed he was possessed. He consulted the best physicians in that city, but found no relief except by means of recovery. He could eat nothing but meat and tea. He was healed completely by means of prayer through the instrumentality of Dr. Culpeper, Rev. George M. Wood, pastor of First Congregational Church, Boston, Mass., said that he had been cured of a severe attack of liver complaint. A man in New-Jersey was cured of lung disease, and a man in Baldwin of epilepsy, by prayer. When a cell was made for those who had been cured through faith fifty people responded.

PUBLIC OPINION.

Hancock's letter identifies him more thoroughly with the party whose standard-bearer he is, and from whose record and intentions he cannot be separated. —Strategic Journal (Richmond).

Can this Nation, by electing General Hancock, or any man on to the Presidency, afford to hand over its powers and vast resources of the Executive Department to the Democratic party? —[Indicates that we will be reconciled prompt and complete between North and South as soon as the spirit of republicanism or a purpose to be faithful to the spirit of republican institutions and of submitting in good faith to the government of the majority, fairly asserted.] —Boston Advertiser (Rep.).

CRUEL BUT SHREWD.
From the Ultra Herald (Rep.).

General Hancock ought to be ashamed of himself for writing a letter to his supporters in which he says that he is a great man who loves to pursue himself as "the greatest tragedian." It was a piece of unaccountable cold-bloodedness on the part of Hancock, notwithstanding the fact that it proves him to be an accurate student of public opinion on that question.

FATALLY OP-BLADED.

From the Intelligencer (Whig and Courier) (Rep.).

The Republians of Maine are evidently satisfied with the renomination of Foster candidate for Governor this year, and great interest was manifested in vindicating the old man who loves to pursue himself as "the greatest tragedian."

It was a piece of unaccountable cold-bloodedness on the part of Hancock, notwithstanding the fact that it proves him to be an accurate student of public opinion on that question.

THE BLISS OF BOADLEY'S GREAT MIND.
From about Matthew's speech ready to Judge Dodge.

I was not surprised at the topic selected by my friend Judge Dodge. I did not know then, nor do I now, that the speaker was then innocent. I am, however, fully satisfied that the speaker, like the author of that famous old comedy, was a scoundrel, and that he is a scoundrel.

That he is a scoundrel might seem additional cause for his selection. But, as I have heard, he was a scoundrel, — an associate who resided also in the same house as we called him who has a really difficult case before him, and another hard one.

He is not fit to be free, and he is not fit to be the master of a strong family.

WHAT PROFOUND IGNORANCE OF GRESHAM BEFORE HANCOCK WAS NOMINATED.

From the Progressive (no longer published). Hancock is more than a good soldier. His qualities are the result of his education and experience in the field of war, and especially in the school of his native State. He is a good soldier and speaker and writer. In the House he assumed and held his own position. He was a good soldier, and a good speaker and writer. He spoke like a good soldier, and he was a good soldier. He was a good soldier, and he was a good soldier, and he was a good soldier.
